Tower Hill School

The addition of this early-1900's school building offered another opportunity for SC&A to demonstrate masterful craftsmanship. Much effort was expended to reproduce the brick pattern and exact mortar colors in order to blend the new and existing structures. Slate roofing materials were special-ordered from Vermont in order to complete the effect. The addition, connected by a new corridor, houses new classrooms for the children yet shows no sign of being new.

Tatnall School

Continuing with the pod-style design already in place, SC&A added a new building to Tatnall School's campus. The large living room area, incorporating two classrooms, features a center pitched roof using beautiful natural woods. The client has been quite pleased with its addition, which houses extended day facilities and art classrooms.
